Introduction

The matron, sister and the nursing teams would like to welcome you to the Ophthalmology Suite at Leicester Royal Infirmary.

Please do not to drive to your appointment for an ophthalmic (eye) operation.

What is the Ophthalmology Suite?

The area is designed to provide a welcoming, safe and relaxing environment for patients to be prepared for their operation on the day of admission.

There is a reception area, consulting rooms and separate waiting areas. There are changing facilities for male and female patients to maintain your privacy.

Can I bring someone with me?

A relative or friend can come with you to the Ophthalmology Suite, although they will not be able to stay with you. This is because the area has limited seating space and also to maintain privacy for our patients, confidentiality and to prevent the spread of infections.

Before they leave, we will give your relative or friend a contact telephone number so they can call later in the day to find out if you are ready to go home. If you are staying overnight, we will give details of the ward you will be in and the visiting hours.

Most people having 'day case' operations will be with us for the whole morning or afternoon.

If you feel you need the support of your friend or relative, please talk to the nurse when you are admitted.

Health information and support is available at www.nhs.uk

What happens on the day?

We will give you an arrival time of either the early morning or late morning. Soon after your arrival you will have a consultation with your surgeon and your anaesthetist.

The nurses will admit and prepare you for your operation according to the theatre list and regular communication with your theatre team. The order of the list is decided by the doctors.

The suite will appear very busy to start with whilst all of the doctors see their patients. It will then settle down as patients are taken to theatre.

After your operation you will either go to a discharge area, or a ward if you need to stay in hospital.

What about waiting times?

We do our very best to keep your waiting time as short as possible before your operation. However, there will always be some waiting and this can be as late as 5pm. The order of the list is decided by the surgeon and anaesthetist, but may change due to the needs of each patient.

Our nursing team will keep you informed as much as possible. We appreciate your patience and understanding while you wait for your operation. Please ask the staff if you need more information, but we cannot give exact times of when you will go to theatre.

You can bring things to do while you wait, such as puzzles and books or magazines to read.

What about eating or drinking?

You will have been told whether or not you can eat or drink and this will have been confirmed in your hospital letter.

You will not be offered refreshments, unless the anaesthetist has given permission, as this could cause serious complications during surgery and lead to your operation being cancelled. If the surgeon or anaesthetist allow food or drink, a member of our nursing team will arrange this.

What to bring into hospital
