Information for Patients

Leaflet number: 653 Version: 3

Introduction

The University Hospitals of Leicester Head, Neck and Thyroid Cancer Nurse Specialist Service is provided by a team of highly qualified and experienced nurses. We have specialist knowledge and skills in the care and support of patients with head and neck cancer.

We are 'key workers' for patients who are referred to the University Hospitals of Leicester NHS Trust (UHL) for investigations and treatment. Key workers are a point of contact for patients and their carers throughout their cancer treatment and follow-up.

We may not always be available at the clinic you attend, but we are available to help on the contact numbers in this leaflet.

What do we provide?

- Information and advice about diagnosis, treatment and treatment options
- An opportunity to talk through any concerns you may have
- A point of contact when questions or problems arise
- Specialist holistic needs assessment and advice about problems you may have due to your illness or treatment.

As key workers, we work very closely with the consultants involved in your care as well as other members of your health care team.

Health information and support is available at www.nhs.uk or call 111 for non-emergency medical advice

Meet the team

We are experienced, qualified nurses who specialise in the management and care of patients with head, neck and thyroid cancers.

You may see us alongside your consultant in the outpatients department, in nurse-led clinics, in the radiotherapy department or on the ward if you are an inpatient.

If you have difficulty with speech you can contact us via text message on these numbers.
